

Flying Concierges

Positively surprising – symbolic of Basel

On arrival in Basel, conference participants will be met by friendly, helpful "flying concierges" who can answer their questions and help make their stay in Basel go smoothly. A large number of local volunteers in identical outfits provide this extra-special service and a wide range of other services. Ranging from a friendly welcome, details of how to get to a particular place or insider tips on restaurants and shopping, they are there to assist visitors.

Guests will find these helpful and knowledgeable locals at high-footfall places in the centre of the city, as well as at the station and the trade fair grounds. Their colourful blue-and-yellow outfits are hard to miss, and they look forward to providing plenty of information.
